"To walk alongside families, supporters, volunteers, caregivers, and community partners was incredibly moving. It was also a beautiful reminder that leadership and community are not only built in boardrooms, meetings, or strategy sessions. They are built in moments of compassion. In showing up. In standing beside people during both celebration and sorrow."

"I have been involved with Hinds Hospice from when it first started forty years ago," Cardell said. "It was apparent from day one, that Whitehurst Chapel and Hinds Hospice shared the same values of compassion, integrity and caring. We became a family, built with two organizations that shared the same goal: to provide the highest quality of care to families during the most difficult times of their lives."

Be present for local families in a meaningful way

"Hinds gave me confidence. Support. Relief. We have a team now. A nurse, a social worker, even Mohammad's favorite aide, Mark, comes for his bath. They laugh. They tell jokes. It's not just care. It's connection."

- Reema, Mohammed's mother (Hinds Kids)
